HISTORY OF THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE 1921-2023

In 2021, the Pauls Valley Chamber celebrated its 100th anniversary and received an official commendation from Oklahoma Gov. Kevin Stitt praising the Chamber as having “successfully enhanced the economic growth of the town, becoming one of the leading business resources in Garvin County.”

The origins go back even further than 1921, however. In 1898, a local Business Men’s Club was organized and was active for a time, but had become dormant. In about 1905, when Pauls Valley was still part of Indian Territory (before statehood), two local newspapers, The Sentinel and the Enterprise, both wrote about the need for reviving the club. In his support of the effort, O.S. Wilson, editor of the Sentinel, wrote, “Pauls Valley is in a progressive county where for a town to stay at the head of the procession requires organization on the part of the citizens.”

The businessmen started the organization on May 11, 1905. A total of 125 people signed up. This was the forerunner of today’s Chamber of Commerce.

Fast-forward some 16 years. The still young but growing town bolstered its business organization again—perhaps following a trend happening nationally with many cities starting Chambers of Commerce. On Dec. 24, 1921, several business leaders incorporated the Pauls Valley Chamber of Commerce. The organization has been a strong and positive force for the economic wellbeing of the town ever since.

Today, the Chamber operates out of a brick building built for the Pauls Valley Masonic Lodge in 1906. The building is said to be the oldest structure of continuous use in downtown. The Masons donated the building to the Chamber in the late 1970s.

HISTORY OF PAULS VALLEY

1857 - 2023

As a young man, Smith Paul—Pauls Valley’s namesake—left his home near New Bern, NC, seeking a new life for himself. He found a home with a Chickasaw tribe in Mississippi. Paul moved with the Chickasaws when the government ordered them to move to Indian Territory in what is now Oklahoma in 1838. They settled around Boggy Depot, today a ghost town southwest of present-day Atoka, OK.

In 1846, Paul married a Chickasaw woman named Ela Teecha (or Ellen in English). Ellen, a widow, had two children and together they had three more. In 1857, the family moved to the fertile Washita River Valley that straddles the river that bisects the town today. More Indians and inter-married whites began to come to the area being called “Smith Paul’s Valley.” A stagecoach stop, a general store and some log houses stood in an area about one mile south of the current-day Santa Fe Depot.

Portraits of Smith Paul and his wife Elateecha by artist Susie Agee are on display in the Chamber Board Room

The Washita Valley became a major producer and trade center for corn, cotton, beef and pork, as well as a crossroads for travel in the area. Army forts located nearby were major consumers of local products. In 1871, one of the earliest U.S. Post Offices in Indian Territory was established here. In 1887, the Chickasaw Enterprise, one of the earliest newspapers in the region, announced the coming of the Santa Fe Railroad, which contributed to the town’s growth and prosperity.

Discover the rich heritage of Pauls Valley at the Santa Fe Depot Museum and Plaza. This unique museum is the home of a variety of artifacts from Pauls Valley’s founder, Smith Paul. It features an authentic steam engine and caboose, recognizing the city’s railroad history. For hours and information, call (405) 238-2244.

Brick building construction started in 1893, and a Federal Court House was built in 1895. The first public white school in Indian Territory was established here in 1899. In 1906, Pauls Valley became the county seat of the new Garvin County, named after Samuel Garvin, a local Chickasaw rancher, merchant and banker. Oklahoma statehood came in 1907. The brick streets still used today were added in 1909.

The downtown area is listed on the National Register of Historic Places as a historic central business district.

DESCRIPTION OF COVER ART

Pauls Valley has joined numerous cities and towns across the nation by creating a Barn Quilt Trail. The first 45 of these unique paintings were dedicated in 2022 and there are currently almost 60 on display around town with more coming soon, thanks to the Pauls Valley Arts Council.

“Barn quilts” are actually not quilts at all. They are simple geometric paintings on wood squares. The colorful images resemble quilt squares like you would find on a warm and comfortable homemade quilt.

The art is displayed in storefronts at participating businesses and organizations. A map of all the locations is available to the general public. Visitors to the city and residents themselves are welcome to discover the numerous barn quilt subjects.

The collection of Pauls Valley’s barn quilts was originally envisioned by city’s vice mayor and Arts Council member Bonnie Meisel. She and the Pauls Valley Arts Council learned about barn quilts at an Oklahoma Arts Council Conference in 2019. Desiring to add more art to her city, Meisel researched the history of barn quilts and began gathering the patterns and wooden boards to produce the artwork. Her home became a creative studio, and once each painting was completed, she found a location for it to be displayed.

Barn quilts are a form of folk art inspired by advertising messages and hex signs painted on old barns. The modern movement can be credited to Donna Sue Groves from Ohio. She saw barns adorned with the artwork while traveling to visit her grandparents in West Virginia. She wanted to create a painted quilt in honor of her mother. In 2001, the first one was painted and became part of a Barn Quilt Trail located in Adams County, Ohio. There are now barn quilt trails in 43 states in the United States.

The pattern chosen for the first Pauls Valley barn quilt was also the first painted in Adams County: “The Ohio Star.”

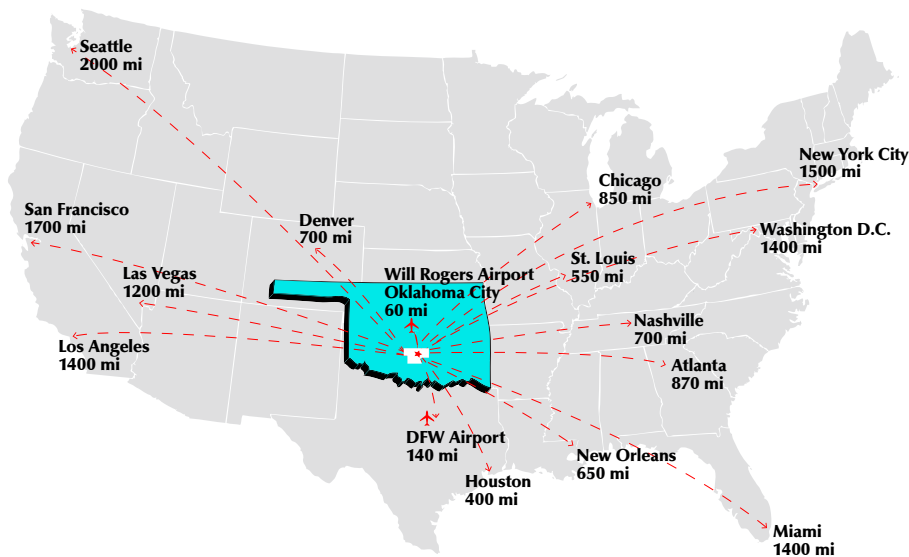

Maps for the trail are available at the Pauls Valley Chamber of Commerce, City Hall, and the Nora Sparks Warren Library.

Barn quilt art welcomes visitors at the Santa Fe Depot Museum.

AGRICULTURE

Garvin County lies in south central Oklahoma and is comprised of 533,120 acres of land, with 468,880 acres being fertile agricultural land. The county is 42 miles wide and 24 miles long. It is an extremely diversified agricultural area with a gross value of production of approximately $152 million. More than $42 million comes from crop production and $105 million from livestock production.

Garvin County ranks number one in south central Oklahoma in wheat production with 32,000 acres. The county also ranks at the top with its corn crop (3,300 acres) and soybeans (8,500 acres).

Alfalfa and other hay crops rank third in the state with 85,000 acres harvested. Garvin County is known for the great quality alfalfa hay raised in the fertile Washita River bottom that extends for over 65 miles in the county. Much of this hay is exported to other states, particularly Texas. This large quantity of quality alfalfa has also been important to the dairy production in Oklahoma and Texas.

Cattle production also ranks in the top ten in the state with 75,000 head of cattle and calves and at the top with beef cows that number 400,000. Rounding out the livestock numbers are 700 head of milk cows, 1,500 sheep, 2,000 head of goats and 250 head of buffalo.

PAULS VALLEY CITY LAKE (405) 207-6630 LAKE R.C. LONGMIRE (405) 207-6630/(405) 238-5531

Constructed in 1954 primarily as a water supply lake, the City Lake offers 750 acres of prime fishing water. Various species of catfish, crappie, black bass and saugeye make this lake worth trying. Camping facilities range from full hook ups to primitive camping. The lake is located three miles northeast of Pauls Valley.

Longmire Lake is located eleven miles east of Pauls Valley on State Highway 19 then 3 miles south. It was constructed in 1989 and named after the late R.C. Longmire who, among others, saw the need for another water supply lake.

With over 900 acres of surface water, the lake offers everyone the opportunity to observe the scenic beauty. Although constructed primarily as a water supply lake, the recreational opportunities of this lake are endless: such as fishing, boating, camping, hiking, bird watching, hunting and swimming.

Longmire Lake also has a pavilion for social functions and has modern bathroom facilities. With the help of the Oklahoma Wildlife Department, Longmire Lake has been designated as a trophy bass lake. Since 1990 Florida bass have been stocked in this lake and is monitored by the ODWC on a semi-annual basis to help insure the lake's status as a trophy bass lake.

Since the construction of Longmire Lake, it has become a favorite wintering habitat for bald eagles, having as many as a dozen eagles at one time.
